This research has been an enormous undertaking, made possible through the support and assistance of a number of organisations and individuals.

We would like to acknowledge, first and foremost, National Legal Aid and the Legal Aid commissions across Australia for their support for this project. Their commitment to improving the evidence base to inform legal service provision for disadvantaged people provided the impetus and a substantial portion of the funding for the project. In fact, their support resulted in expanding what was originally to be a survey of legal needs in New South Wales into a national survey.

We would like to extend a special thank you to Pascoe Pleasence, Professor of Empirical Legal Studies at University College London, and Dr Nigel Balmer, Reader in Law and Social Statistics at University College London and Principal Researcher at the Legal Services Research Centre, Legal Services Commission, United Kingdom. They provided expert advice on legal needs survey research, analysis and reporting.

In addition, we would like to acknowledge Dr Terry Beed and Mr Chris Gibson for their work as consultants in the tender process for the fieldwork.

Many staff of the Law and Justice Foundation of New South Wales also provided various types of assistance. In particular, we would like to thank Dr Anne Grunseit for assisting in the design and piloting stages, and Natalina Nheu for assisting in the design, fieldwork and data coding stages. We would also like to thank, in alphabetical order, the following staff for their assistance in the early phases of the research or their comments on early report drafts: Michael Cain, Antonia Fontana, Suzie Forell, Abigail Gray, Maria Karras, Geoff Mulherin, Angela Skocic and Aristeia Vosnakis. In addition, Maureen Ward and Anna Russell provided library support, and Cinzia Cavallaro, Maria Leonardis and Simon Miller provided assistance with the publication process.

We would also like to acknowledge Roy Morgan Research for conducting the fieldwork. Finally, we would like to thank the people who voluntarily gave up their time to participate as respondents in the survey.
